BERLIN BOMBED BY U.S. PLANES TODAY

FATE OF 50,000 JAPS SEALED BY ISLAND BLOW

Noose Drawn on Bismarck Archipelago; Enemy Scores Limited Success in India.

By The Associated Press

Japan's forces have taken another setback in the southwest Pacific, where allied invasion of the St. Matthias islands seals the trap on more than 50,000 of the enemy, but have scored a limited success in the Burma fighting by driving across the Indian border.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur communiqued today that the speedy occupation of Emirau and Elomuseo islands 84 miles northwest of Kavieng, New Ireland, closes the noose around more than 50,000 Nipponese soldiers still fighting in the Bismarck archipelago.

"This places us within bombing range of Truk," he said. Emirau islands, flat and a potential air base, lies 580 miles south of the mighty Japanese naval, supply and air fortress in the Carolines.

Airfield Near Truk

Allied forces already hold one airfield in Eniwetok atoll in the Marshall islands from which Truk bombers can be used. Eniwetok is 750 miles from Truk.

The Japanese drive into India, an allied communique said, consisted merely of small raiding parties but it admitted the enemy has cooked up a major offensive in north Burma starting from the Chindwin river. On other Burma fronts, allied troops scored defensive successes.

In the St. Matthias group, both invaded islands are reportedly undeveloped. Emirau has two harbors. Air observers reported no enemy installations could be seen and the landings were completed without casualty.

Kavieng, major enemy stronghold in New Ireland, was virtually blown into oblivion while the St. Matthias invasion was on. Mighty U. S. battleships stood offshore for three and one-half hours and pumped 1,000 tons of shells into the once-mighty base.

Town Wiped Out

When it was over, there wasn't much left. "Whole sections of the town were completely destroyed," MacArthur communized. A day and night bombing set up the battlewagons' bombardment.

Other targets for allied planes included Rabaul, New Britain, and enemy shipping along the New Guinea coast. After nine straight days of heavy attack, allied airmen passed over Wewak, New Guinea, to hit Altape airdrome 90 miles northwest with 152 tons of bombs and wreck parked planes.

Premier Tojo didn't come up with anything startling when he told the Japanese diet, according to the Berlin radio, that Japan's war situation has become grave in the past few months and the battles ahead will decide the empire's fate.

Japs Cross Burma Border Into India

By The Associated Press

NEW DELHI, March 22—Japanese troops who launched a major offensive in northern Burma several days ago have crossed the border of India and penetrated into Manipur state "at one or two places," an allied communique announced today.

The bulletin said the enemy forces consisted merely of small raiding parties.

At the same time, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's headquarters declared allied troops had repulsed a comparatively heavy Japanese attack in the Maungdaw-Buthedaung area at the southern end of the Burmese front, where British and Indian forces have been moving slowly down along the coast toward enemy-held Akyab.

This was the first allied acknowledgement of Japanese penetration of India. The Berlin radio in May, 1942, had reported Japanese crossings of the frontier, quoting Tokyo dispatches, but such claims never were heard directly from Japanese sources.

The Tokyo radio today declared that leaders of the Indian independence league were jubilant "over news of the Indian national army march into Indian soil."

FINNISH PEACE TALK APPEARS AT END

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, March 22—Further peace conversations between Moscow and Helsinki appeared unlikely today in the wake of an official Soviet announcement warning Finland that she must bear responsibility for whatever may happen as a result of her failure to accept Russian armistice proposals.

The Finnish government's decision to reject a Soviet six-point plan was announced to the Russian people last night by the Moscow radio, which said "a negative reply" had been received from Helsinki on March 17.

"Thereby the Finnish government has taken upon itself entire responsibility for the consequences," declared the announcement, which was issued by the Soviet foreign office.

(Dispatches from Stockholm quoted Swedish press correspondents in Berlin as saying the Germans predicted the Russian announcement would be followed by a new Red army offensive in Estonia designed to clean up the Baltic states which—if successful—would place Finland in a hopeless military situation.

GEN. PATCH GIVEN PATTON'S COMMAND

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NAPLES, March 22—Maj. Gen. Alexander M. Patch, veteran of Guadalcanal and New Caledonia, has been given command of the U. S. Seventh army, replacing Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., who led it to victory in Sicily and later was rebuked by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower over the slapping of a soldier in a field hospital near Palermo.

(Patton known in the field as "Old Blood and Guts" and "the general who never lost a battle," has been given command of "another army," the war department said in Washington, but the unit and the general's whereabouts were not disclosed.)

The Seventh army, whose whereabouts are undisclosed, has not been reported in action since the Sicilian campaign, though some units which were in it have been in combat as part of the Fifth army in Italy. Among these are the Third and 45th infantry divisions, now on the Anzio beachhead below Rome.

Ford Turns Tables, Asks Who Started This War?

CINCINNATI, March 22—Henry Ford uttered four words today in turning the tables on a reporter who sought elaboration of his prediction that the war would end in two months.

"Who created this war?" Ford asked.

"Could you not provide a clue?" the reporter inquired.

"Young man," replied the motor magnate, "that's your job—who created this war?"

With that, Ford, his wife and secretary, Frank Campsell entered his sedan for the return drive to Detroit.

Ford's view that the war would end in two months was given in an interview copyrighted by the Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution.

Post War and You

When the war's over—

How soon can you get those things you want? What about your job? Will women go back to the kitchen? What will it cost to get a new car? A new stove?

The Associated Press, in an extensive survey, has tried to look into post war Ohio. It went to leading industrialists, owners of small factories, the laborer.

A glance at Ohio after the war is mirrored in their opinion, their belief.

REPORT NAZIS TO QUIT ROME

Nazi Radio Report Hints Italian Capital To Be Made Open City.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, March 22—The German-controlled Rome radio today announced that the Germans would withdraw all military installations from Rome and would divert all military traffic from the city, in an effort to place responsibility for bombings entirely on the allies.

The broadcast apparently sought to declare Rome an open city. Such a unilateral declaration, of course, has no effect in international law, since it would have to be accepted by the allies to make it binding. The Badoglio government of Italy sought to declare Rome an open city before Badoglio capitulated last September.

The broadcast said:

"So that responsibility for the bombing of Rome will remain entirely with the allies, the German command in the next few days will scrupulously withdraw from Rome every installation which could serve as the slightest pretext for air terror, and will still further deviate military transports from the Eternal City."

Coal Gas Kills 426 Italians in Tunnel

By The Associated Press

NAPLES, March 22—A total of 426 Italians died from goal gas asphyxiation when a train stalled in a tunnel in southern Italy March 3, it was announced today.

Allied military investigators found the accident "an act of God" caused by a combination of murky atmosphere with no wind to ventilate the tunnel and wet rails which caused the train to stall.

Carbon monoxide gas overcame the engine crew before they could start the train and the scores of unauthorized passengers who had climbed aboard the train were asphyxiated swiftly.

ANOTHER LAVA HAIL THROWN BY VESUVIUS

By The Associated Press

ON THE SLOPES OF VESUVIUS, March 22 — A great new eruption from seething Mt. Vesuvius today covered the area around Pompei with a two-inch layer of lava hurled through the air in chunks, and sent a gigantic finger of glowing coals into houses of a third town on the northwestern slope.

Pompei, at the foot of Mt. Vesuvius on the south, was buried by the eruption of 79 A. D.

The hail of lava fell over crops in the area, burning them. American and British soldiers wore steel helmets against the shower, and natives placed iron pots on their heads.

Early this morning the molten river of Lava rolling down the northwestern side of the mountain had swept away the first houses in Cercola two miles down the peak.

NEW ZEALAND TROOPS MAKING STEADY GAINS

Germans Forced Back in Cassino in Bitter Hand-to-Hand Fighting.

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, NAPLES, March 22 — New Zealand troops of the Fifth Army, slugging it out with the enemy in savage, hand-to-hand fighting, are making slow but steady progress in the southern section of Cassino, Allied headquarters announced today.

Fighting equally as bloody raged in the hills to the west from which an estimated 30 pieces of German artillery and many mortars continued to rain shells into the ruined town.

"Our efforts to clear the town of Cassino and occupy the eastern slopes of dominating Monte Cassino were pushed against bitter enemy opposition and terrain difficulties Monday and Tuesday," a headquarters commentator said.

Allied troops holding one point on the Monte Cassino slopes were only 400 to 700 yards from two strong German artillery points just west of the town, making it difficult for Allied gunners to neutralize the enemy fire without endangering their own men.

German defense forces in Cassino were reinforced Monday by young Nazi parachute troops and units of an armored grenadier division.

An official announcement said that additional German prisoners have been taken, increasing to 238 the total captured since the battle began a week ago.

On the Monte Cassino slopes, British troops made a determined attack on two German points last night and were making good progress until they ran into a minefield. The Germans meanwhile started infiltrating down a gulch toward the British-held hill, forcing the attackers to return to their base.

The Anzio beachhead sector was mostly quiet except for heavy German artillery fire near Padiglione. On the Adriatic side of the battle line, patrol clashes occurred, especially in the Orsogna region. Allied artillery scored direct hits on German-held houses near Tollo and mortars fired into moving German troops near Arielli.

ADMINISTRATION HIT IN TALKS BY SMITH

Congressman Assails War and Post-War Programs.

Congressman F. C. Smith of Marion today figured in two news reports coming out of Washington, both of them based on criticisms of administration policies.

In one, he took part in a new attack opened today by members of the house banking committee on what they call government-by-executive order, this time directed at President Roosevelt's plan for handling surplus war materials, The Associated Press reported.

In this movement, Congressman Smith and Congressman Kunkel of Pennsylvania were critical of handling the huge task on the basis of executive order instead of congressional action. To add legislation to the basic order, Kunkel said, would create a "patchwork" that would fall under pressure.

Meanwhile, another Associated Press dispatch reported Congressman Smith had charged that British and American proposals for postwar currency stabilization are in reality a plan intended to "inveigle" this country into handing over control of its gold stockpile to Great Britain. The Associated Press reported in a news dispatch from Washington.

He contended the objective was to have the United States assume $5,000,000,000 worth of British debts owed to other countries, "to restore London as the world's banker and financial center, and to finance her (Great Britain's) world trade and pay for her Beveridge (social security) plan."

HINT CEILING ON FARM PAY

Policy of Limiting Wages May Be Extended, Jones Declares.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 22—War Food Administrator Marvin Jones told the senate banking committee today a policy of setting ceilings on farm wages in some areas may have to be extended this year "in the interest of production."

Appearing in behalf of legislation to continue the stabilization act another year, Jones also said the government supported prices for farm products "are an integral part of the war food production and have played their part in inducing" an output in 1943 which was 32 per cent greater than the five-year pre-war average.

On farm wage ceilings, he said:

"Farmers are likely to become increasingly interested in wage stabilization in 1944. Although farm wages were a relatively low level when the war started they have increased substantially.

"There have been some areas, especially during the harvest season of certain perishable commodities, when the immediate pressing demands caused wages to reach prohibitive levels. . . .

"We have put into effect several wage ceilings in such areas and there may be need for extending such measures this year, in the interest of production."

In advocating continuance of federal payments to support farm prices, Jones said they "not only encourage the necessary total production, but the relative prices for the various products encourage the most desirable pattern of production."

Before the hearing started Senator Maybank (D-S. C.) asked the food administrator whether rationing was in prospect for any items not now listed. Jones mentioned milk as the only possibility in sight.

Another question which interested the senators was the chance for separating meat and butter rationing, with butter becoming ration-free.

FAMED DOCTOR DIES

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 22—Dr. Carl Koller, 86, internationally famous as the discoverer in Vienna in 1884 of local anesthesia by means of cocaine, died yesterday. He became an American citizen in 1902 and has practiced here nearly 50 years.

GERMANS AIM AT FULL ARMY BALKAN RULE

Predict Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria Will Be Under One Command.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, March 22—German troops, already in control in Hungary, were reported moving today to extend full military occupation to Bulgaria and Rumania and the Turkish radio expressed the view Hitler soon would place all three countries under one command "to intensify the German war effort in southeast Europe."

Advices from neutral capitals indicated the Nazi divisions were seizing strategic military and civil administration centers.

Bulgarian Cabinet Meets

The Bulgarian cabinet was said by the Ankara radio to have met in prolonged session yesterday to discuss German demands for active help in the Nazi war against Russia. Bulgaria, at war with Britain and the United States, never has interrupted relations with Russia, long her friend and champion.

London morning newspapers published Ankara dispatches saying it was reported there Premier Ion Antonescu of Rumania was planning to seek an armistice with Russia. Rumania was believed ready to renounce all claim to Bessarabia as one of the armistice conditions, these dispatches said.

Nazis in Full Control

Reports about the situation in Hungary agreed on one point only—that 100,000 German troops now completely dominate the country with full control of all railways and communications. There were indications the Nazis were attempting to set up a Quisling regime in Budapest.

Berlin itself remained silent about what is proposed in the Balkans, although a foreign office spokesman indirectly intimated military occupation of the entire area might be proposed.

As in the case of Hungary, swiftly occupied in a 36-hour coup early in the week, information about the situation in Rumania and Bulgaria was confused.

Chicken with Two Extra Legs Hatched

A four-legged chick was hatched yesterday in a brood owned by Mrs. Marion McCardle of 239 Lincoln avenue. Mrs. McCardle said the chick has use of only one pair of legs. The second pair is behind the normal pair. Although useless the legs do not seem to be stunted.

Mrs. McCardle, who took up chicken raising to occupy her spare time while her husband is serving overseas with the army, said she would try to raise the freak. She has taken it from the group of 100 chicks with which it was hatched because the others picked at the strange creature.

CAPITAL UNDER FIRST ATTACK SINCE MARCH 9

Estimate 1,500 Tons of Bombs Carried by 1,250 to 1,750 Planes.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, March 22—American heavy bombers returned today to the attack on Berlin, striking the German capital for the first time since March 9.

"German industrial and military targets in the Berlin district were bombed today by strong forces of B-24 Liberators and B-17 Flying Fortresses of the U. S. Eighth air force," an announcement said.

"P-47 Thunderbolts, P-38 Lightnings and P-51 Mustangs of the Eighth and Ninth air forces operating in very great strength provided escort and support."

Use of term "strong forces" indicated they dropped probably more than 1,500 tons of bombs.

The preliminary announcement suggested that 500 to 750 heavy bombers had participated with an even larger force of fighters. The attacking armada probably numbered from 1,250 to 1,750 planes. They aimed not only to increase destruction inside Berlin, but to flush the German fighter force and reduce it before d-day.

RAF Out Again

Western Germany was shaken for the twelfth straight night by bombs from the RAF's Marauding Mosquitos last night and this morning German radio stations started going off the air again—generally a tip-off that allied raiders are over the continent.

The RAF's overnight operations, which included laying of mines in enemy waters, were carried out without the loss of a single plane, the air ministry said.

English coastal observers reported several contingents of medium bombers thundering toward the cliffs of France, which were visible in clear weather.

Nazis Bomb London

About 100 German warplanes subjected London to a sharp attack last night, causing casualties and damage in a number of sections in the heaviest assault upon the city since the fire raid of March 17.

The planes struck in three waves and were greeted by a thunderous barrage which reared a new window-rattling peak in some areas.

British night fighters and the heavy barrage apparently forced many of the attackers to jettison their bombs haphazardly in the London suburbs, but many nevertheless fell in the city.

Rescue workers still were digging for victims in the ruins of smashed homes at midday.

The Nazis used a pathfinder technique, the first planes over the city dropping scores of flares to light up the target.

The barrage continued at its peak for about a half-hour before gradually subsiding.

REDS 30 MILES FROM RUMANIA

Russians Knifing Ahead Toward Frontier Along Prut River.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, March 22—Russian armies smashing through Bessarabia in a mighty surge toward the Balkans have knifed to within 30 miles of the Prut river border of Rumania, Moscow announced today, and other forces striking southward were reported within 40 miles of the major escape road for the thousands of Germans in the Odessa bottleneck.

Reinforced by tanks and artillery pouring steadily across the Dniester river, the Russians slashed the Cernauti-Balti trunk railway in their advance toward the Prut, a Soviet communique declared.

The Hammer And Sickle was raised above 300 more liberated towns and villages yesterday as the Russians continued to pound the Germans back along the 500-mile front from old Poland to the Black sea. The Soviet bulletin said the forces striking for Lwow, big Nazi communications hub in old Poland, had crashed into Lwow province. The Russians were within 56 miles of Lwow itself.

In the fighting in old Poland, the Russians said the Nazis threw in an infantry division "just arriver from Denmark," but several German counter-attacks were repulsed and 900 of the enemy were killed.

As one Russian force swept southward in Bessarabia in a flanking movement on Odessa, Gen. Rodion Y. Malinovsky, a Stalingrad hero, sent his third Ukrainian army through 92 more villages, hurling the Germans back toward the big Black sea base from the north, the Soviet bulletin declared. German broadcasts indicated the Nazis were trying to "disengage" themselves from the attacking Russians in this sector.

Marion Residents Donate Music and Books for Soldiers

The Marion Lecture-Recital club is joining other clubs in the Ohio Federation of Music clubs in a statewide drive to provide music, instruments, radios and other musical equipment for the World war II veterans at the Fletcher General hospital at Cambridge.

Individuals or musical organizations wishing to help in this wartime project are asked to contact the war service chairman by dialing 9330. Instruments of all kinds are desired, together with sheet music, hymnals, electric phonographs, radios and records.

Some contributions already have been sent, a check of the progress of the campaign shows. A gift of $2.50 from the Lecture-Recital club Study group, a set of eight books on "World's Best Music," a gift of Mrs. James C. Woods and five hymnals for use in chapel, a gift of the Junior Lecture-Recital club, have been forwarded to the hospital and are now in use. The Juvenile Lecture-Recital club has contributed one dollar. Eleanor Cowan, South State street, and a member of the senior music club, male quartet music. Frank Butterworth, North Greenwood street, banjo uke and ukulele, male quartet music, choral and popular numbers, J. C. Marks, Davids street, violin, Mrs. Cora Peuser, South State street, guitar, Chris Turoff, money and Dr. Edward E. Hipsher, music.

It has been found that a number of the wounded men or the staff members are interested in books and magazines on music or like to follow scores with symphony and opera broadcasts. All varieties of sheet music for voice, piano, band and male choruses are in demand.

There is a need for band instruments as the post is not large enough to have them bought by government allowance. Officers in charge report there are plenty of musicians at Fletcher for a band and such an organization could play an important role in the life at the post. Nowadays, even with funds for the purpose, band instruments are hard to find, new or second hand, a survey shows.

Overhauling of Bucyrus Waterworks Urged

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, March 22—Labeling the Bucyrus waterworks system a "safety hazard" Fred Waring, chief engineer of the state department of health in a meeting with city council members Monday night urged immediate consideration of a complete overhauling of the distributive, pumping and reservoir system.

Distribution was named most urgent of the replacements recommended with pumping second and reservoir third.

Bucyrus is using more chlorine than any other city in Ohio because of the condition of the water, he told councilmen.

One bushel of soybeans yields about nine pounds of soy oil.

Sons, Mother Reunited After Long Separation

Joe L. Miller of 576 Davids street and Dewey Miller of Edison pike, were recently reunited with their mother, Mrs. Bertha Sharp of Covington, La. after being separated from her 23 years. Another sister, Mrs. David Kauble, and a brother, Johnny, both of Forest, O. completed the family circle.

Circumstances following the death of Mr. Miller resulted in the family being separated. The brothers tried various times to locate their mother and traveled to Kalamazoo, Mich. twice after hearing that she was living there. Both trips were in vain.

Recently Mrs. Sharp wrote to her daughter after locating her in Forest and once the contact was made, the reunion itself was quite simple. The children sent for their mother, who had remarried, and her daughter by the second marriage, Dolores. The two arrived in Forest Thursday and plan to make their home with the son and daughter there.

HULL OUTLINES U. S. POST-WAR POLICY

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 22—A 17-point foreign policy statement by Secretary of State Hull today gave the United States a bid for postwar political leadership and brought into sharper relief a half dozen questions of immediate diplomatic concern.

Hull's statement was viewed here as setting goals for long range international cooperation and security on a basis of sovereign equality of all countries, large or small.

The immediate questions for which his program furnishes a background are outside the scope of his statement which is based on Hull's speeches over the past two years.

What kind of relationship is this government ready to extend to the French national committee or possibly other patriotic groups?

Would the United States break relations with Finland over rejection of Russia's peace terms?

If Russia decides against dealing with the Polish government in London, will the United States recognize a new Polish government?

What measures is the United States prepared to support for the political reconstruction of Italy after allied armies reach Rome?

How long can the United States maintain its present policy of withholding recognition from Argentina without implementing its dislike of the present regime through economic measures?

Will the United States in collaboration with Britain further tighten restrictions on pro-axis Spain and pro-allied Turkey and on neutral Ireland?

Several of the secretary's 17 points were considered pertinent to current problems even though in the main he was concerned with clarifying American policy for the postwar period.

Other points know to be applicable to current situations include a statement that each nation "should be free to decide for itself the forms and detail of its governmental organization."

On the long range questions of international organization, the secretary called for creation of an international agency backed by adequate force to maintain peace, the settlement of dangerous political differences by negotiation, the organization of an international court to solve legal disputes, and the reduction of armaments so far as they may be reduced without endangering the force necessary to maintain peace.

Dewey Lands Top Spot in Poll of Oklahoma G. O. P.

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., March 22—In the "border" state of Oklahoma, scene of an important congressional by-election next week, Governor Thomas E. Dewey, of New York, tops the list of G.O.P. presidential candidates in Republican rank and file preference.

At the same time, General Douglas MacArthur and Wendell Willkie, whom polls have found with a substantial following among Republican voters in the South, show considerable strength in Oklahoma. General MacArthur runs second in the present survey, Wendell Willkie third.

Rank and file sentiment toward Republican candidates in Oklahoma takes on increased importance in that many Republican leaders are hoping to chisel both the Oklahoma and Kentucky border states out of the solid Southern Democratic bloc in the coming elections. Oklahoma, it will be remembered, elected a Republican senator in 1942, while Kentucky elected a Republican governor last November.

To determine rank and file party sentiment throughout the state, field reporters for the Institute presented to each person interviewed a list of various men who have been widely talked of as possible candidates for president. The preferences of those voters who named a Republican are as follows:

OKLAHOMA
Thomas E. Dewey	36%
Douglas MacArthur ..	27
Wendell Willkie	22
John W. Bricker	10
Eric Johnson	3
Harold Stassen	2

Whereas in the entire South, Willkie runs a close second to Dewey with a vote of 31 per cent as against Dewey's 35 per cent, he runs 14 points behind the New York governor in the Oklahoma survey.

Another Story In Earhart Legend

By The Associated Press

MARSHALL ISLAND, March 4—(Delayed)—Possibility that Amelia Earhart Putnam, world famed aviatrix, ran out of gas in the Marshall islands and was taken to Japan has been revived by a remark of a mission trained native to Lieutenant Eugene T. Bogan of New York City.

Lieutenant Bogan, a former New York tax lawyer and now a representative of the Marshall island military governor, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander of the Public fleet, reported Elieu, the 30-year-old native, said:

"A Jap trade named Ajima three and a half years ago on Rita island told me that an American woman pilot came down between Juluit and Allinglapalap atolls and that she was picked up by a Japanese fishing boat and the trader Ajima heard that she was taken to Japan."

Elieu insisted he heard of no man being with the "American woman pilot." Fred Noonan flew with Miss Putnam as navigator on her world-girdling trip.

One of the Marshall islands commanders depreciated Elieu's yarn as "a third-hand story based upon gossip."

Piles Are Never 'Mild'

DANGER IN NEGLECT

No one should ever think of piles (hemorrhoids) as a "mild" disorder.

Although they may seem a "mild" ailment, especially when not giving pain or inconvenience, piles are in fact tumor formations without tendency to heal themselves. Instead, they are likely, if neglected, to keep increasing in size, involving more and more of the rectal area.

Even a so-called "mild" case may be expected to undermine one's health, by inviting, predisposing to or aggravating other ailments, such as: indigestion, biliousness, stomach trouble, constipation, headaches, pain in the back and down the legs, secondary anemia with its run-down tired feeling, and general nervous irritability.

Removal of piles is the only positive cure. This can be done without knife, drugs or loss of time from work.

Next White House Hostess?

This is one of a series of articles on the women who might possibly become the next First Lady.

By Central Press.

Harriet Day Bricker, it has long been said, has a charm and grace which would be as much at home in the White House as it is in the governor's mansion in Columbus, or among her friends in Urbana, where she grew to womanhood and taught high school chemistry.

Many people in Ohio admire Mrs. John Bricker, wife of the governor, for her civic work, her sincerity and poise, and for the unostentatious way she carries out her social duties as "first lady" of the state.

She is still just "Harriet" to her former high school pupils. Her quiet graciousness and hospitality have made of the governor's mansion a home where 13-year-old son Jack's friends play ball and where the nation's great find equal comfort.

Mrs. Bricker has a keen sense of humor, a ready smile, and an unerring sense of the fitness of things. Her poise is not easily disturbed—not even when 150 ladies instead of the expected 80 show up for tea.

She loves music, plays the piano, likes to paint and draw, collects antique glassware, and loves to keep house. Her vegetable garden is her particular pride.

With Mrs. Bricker, her home and her family come first. That home need not be elaborate, but it must be attractive, wholesome and restful. For six months after moving into the governor's mansion Mrs. Bricker spent most of her spare time supervising the repainting of walls and woodwork in the living rooms. She mixed the paint herself.

Mrs. Bricker runs the 27-room governor's mansion without a housekeeper or a secretary and she is a good budgeter in its operation.

She has always been active in charitable organizations — not merely lending her name but attending meetings, accepting chairmanships and doing the jobs assigned to her.

Ordinarily, Mrs. Bricker declines to speak at political meetings because, she says "that is John's sphere." On rare occasions, Mrs. Bricker will consent to make a political speech. When she does, it's sound, to the point, and well delivered.

As a girl she had aspirations to become a physician, but compromised with her family by specializing in chemistry. The head of the chemistry department of Ohio State university has said she was one of the most brilliant chemistry students ever enrolled there. At the university she was a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma, national sorority, president of the Y. W. C. A., May queen and active in campus affairs.

As Miss Harriet Day, she was reared in a small town. John Bricker first met her when he alighted from a troop train in Columbus during World War I. Their romance developed when he returned to the university after the war. They were married after their graduation in 1920. She is proud of her husband, helpful in his career, but believes her first duty is to make a real home for him and their son.

Job Machinery Operates Here for Returning War Veterans

First of Men Discharged from Service Receive Attention from Special Department at Employment Office.

Marion county's veterans of World war II are coming back gradually—the first trickle in what will later be a stream of men coming back to civilian life—and Marion is already operating the machinery to get them back into their civilian jobs.

There are a number of agencies set up to help, including the reemployment representative named by each selective service board, the veterans' administration and others. But the bulk of them, as already indicated by events to date, will find their way back into civilian work through the Marion office of the United States Employment Service at Center and State streets in charge of Fred B. Scherff.

Don Tonguette, a member of Mr. Scherff's staff, has been selected to handle veterans' cases. On many of the cases that will come to his attention, he will receive the help of Miss Wanda Freshwater, also a member of the staff, who has been named handicapped representative to help those with physical handicaps.

185 Listed Thus Far

Records of the Marion office show that Mr. Tonguette already has studied the employment problems of 185 veterans—and 87 per cent of this total is represented by men back from World war II. Most of them have medical discharges and consequently many of them will not be able to go back to the type of work they had before the war, especially if it required heavy physical exertion.

Here's what became of the cases that have been handled to date:

168 of them were referred to job openings. Of these 138 were placed on jobs.

22 not placed by the office included one veteran who found the referred job taken when he got there, another who suffered a broken arm before he got on the job, four found not qualified for the jobs, 13 who failed to report to employers after being given job referrals, two who were rejected by employers because of physical reasons and one who refused to accept a referred job.

23 refused job openings offer to them, 13 saying they were not interested in jobs then open and wanted to find their own jobs, one who complained of low wage rates, one wished to look around first, four wanted to rest before taking jobs, four got inter-area clearances to seek jobs in other localities.

Some from Former Wars

Some of the men represented by these figures were World war I veterans and even a couple of Spanish war veterans. Naturally, the question of former employment before military service was out of the picture in their cases. Mr. Scherff emphasized today that so far as World war II is concerned, former employers, without exception, have taken the men back into their organizations upon their return from service, even when the worker was handicapped and had to do altogether different work than that done before the war.

Some of the cases in the figures, such as those rejected for physical reasons, are not dropped by the USES but are kept on hand for future referral to jobs they can handle. None of the cases are closed as far as USES is concerned until the man is at work, and even then his problem will be taken up again if he loses employment for any reason.

Given Preference

Incidentally, the veterans get the right-of-way so far as the USES is concerned. They are given first opportunity to fill the job openings available, and throughout the office procedure his case is given first attention.

Some of the veterans have definite ideas about what they want to do. So far the USES has been able to meet even unusual requests. For example, two veterans wanted to go west, so USES landed them on jobs in the state of Washington and, in doing it, managed to find an employer willing to pay their transportation and living expenses until they got on the job.

The USES gets a list of the names of men discharged from military service. Immediately a letter goes out offering the assistance of the office to them in finding work. Ten days later, if the first letter has not produced any response, another letter is sent. Even if there is no response to this and USES can not immediately contact him, his name is kept in the file so that he may be given prompt attention whenever he wants USES help.

Placement of the physical handicapped is done after a careful analysis of the man's handicap and the type of work suited to his physical capacity. The setup calls not only for a job that the man is able to do but, if possible, one that will enable him to improve his health on the job or overcome his handicap if it is of a remedial nature.

The machinery for handling returning veterans is extensive, and covers about every possible contingency. For example, the procedure is set up to deal with the possible employer who might refuse to take a veteran back to his former job. Although it is hoped that this procedure will never be used, it is there, with federal authorities ready to swing into action to see that the man gets back his job if he wants it. Incidentally, a man has 40 days from the date of his discharge to apply to have his old job back.

HOW Women HELP TO KEEP THEM ROLLING ON THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD

A TIME ROLE FOR WOMEN . . . as a swimmer on the Pennsylvania Railroad. Women serve on short runs, as a rule.

RAILROADING has always been regarded as a man's calling.

But when war reached deeply into railroad ranks—taking from the Pennsylvania Railroad alone more than 44,000 skilled and experienced workers for the Armed Forces—women were employed to help keep trains rolling.

Today, on the Pennsylvania Railroad, approximately 22,000 women are serving in a wide variety of occupations—four of which you see illustrated here.

Positions such as trainmen, ticket sellers, train passenger representatives, ushers, information and reservation personnel call for intelligence, courtesy and a high degree of efficiency. Young women fresh from college and high school—after intensive training—have proved they can fill these roles most capably.

So, we're glad to have their help in the greatest job railroads have ever been called upon to do, moving men and materials to Victory!

ENDS 5-YEAR SIEGE OF CONSTIPATION!

"Now as Regular as Anyone!" Says H. C. Durand

Here's a sincere, unsolicited letter every disappointed "doser" will want to read:

"I'm 52 years old, and have been constipated over 5 years, going as much as 5 days without a movement. Pills and laxatives would relieve me only for the day I took them. Next day I'd be as bad as ever. Then I tried KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. Am now on my second box, and as regular as anyone could want, thanks to regular use of your wonderful product!" Mr. H. C. Durand, 221 W. Columbus Ave., Freeport, Long Island, N. Y.

Sounds like "magic," doesn't it? Yet, KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN really can, and does, get at a common cause of constipation—lack of certain dietary "roughage" elements! That's because it is one of Nature's most effective sources of these elements—which help the friendly colonic flora stay up and prepare the colonic muscles for easy, natural elimination. Among Those Not Consulted

SECRETARY OF STATE HULL'S admission that this government was not consulted in advance about Soviet Russia's intention to recognize the Badoglio government in Italy is a reminder of another interested party which wasn't consulted—Earl Browder's busy organization of homegrown pinks.

Once more they went out on a limb and found it sawed off behind them. This has become a regular occurrence for them. The party line is on an hour-to-hour basis. Just about the time they get organized to throw their weight one way or the other, the signals change and there they stand, alone with another batch of outdated propaganda. If they don't wonder sometimes whether they have become disowned relatives, they mustn't be surprised if others do.

Royal Marriage

IF IT were not for factional disputes in Yugoslavia, with his throne tottering, a German army occupying most of his country and all of Greece, and the newly revealed importance of the whole Balkan area as Russia's winter offensive finally broke through into Bessarabia, the marriage of young King Peter to Princess Alexandra of Greece could be enjoyed in the royal marriage tradition. The princess is charming. The marriage took place in the presence of the crowned heads of Great Britain, Greece, Norway and the Netherlands.

But, unfortunately, the crowned heads, with the exception of that of King George VI of Britain, are uneasy. While the young members of royalty being united had been engaged as far back as 1942, there is a strong suspicion that their marriage may be something more than the consummation of an orderly plan for bringing together personable young members of European royalty. King Peter is struggling desperately for his throne. He may have come to London only for the wedding, but it is not easy to believe there is not some politics involved, too.

Whatever congratulations are in order must be tempered with awareness that momentous things have happened and are about to happen in southeastern Europe. May the young king and queen be happy, but even more than most young couples who marry in wartime, they will have their little problems.

The People's Problem

THE National Physician's committee, which is undertaking presentation of the medical profession's case against federalized control of medical care and hospitalization, has drawn on the new technique of public opinion research. The committee's findings are presented in a survey on medical care prepared by Opinion Research Corp. of Princeton, N. J.

Most significant fact revealed by the survey is popular distrust of "political medicine." While there is a strong public demand for protection against unusual medical expense, there is no demand for the kind of protection proposed in the Wagner-Murray-Dingle bills pending in congress. Not only is there no demand, but the survey reveals the public does not even understand what the politicians have been advocating in their behalf, under the guise of social security. The Physician's committee concludes that when people understand what is at stake, they are overwhelmingly in favor of continuing the practice of medicine as it has been developed here, with an extension of facilities designed to aid in meeting the cost of unusual or prolonged illness.

The disclosure is constructive. It indicates a positive program for the medical profession in protection of its own and the public's interest. The Physician's committee announce its intention to do everything within its ability to extend to a majority of Americans the kind of benefits now accruing to approximately 25,000,000 through the various types of medical and hospital service plans already in operation. The committee makes this declaration of purpose and faith:

"With the active cooperation of the individuals and the groups directly affected—the professions, the manufacturers, the distributors, American labor, the insurance industry, and American industrial concerns—steps can be taken which will bring relief to 100,000,000 people and provide a method of meeting the cost of unusual and prolonged illness and of hospitalization."

News Behind the News

McCarran Bill Proposes Single Company To Handle U. S. Inter-Ocean Air Business.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, March 22—The first of the post-war policy plans to reach concrete form was presented to the senate unostentatiously in Senator McCarran's bill rewriting air law. Its legal complexities obscured its importance and the rather sensational internal fight out of which it grew.

McCarran generally acts for the airline companies, but this new program was devised under his personal supervision independently. It came forth after the Bennett Clark sub-committee secretly had subjected America's private master of ocean airways, Juan Trippe of Pan American, to several days of relentless inquiry concerning his methods of current control and proposed domination.

The McCarran bill would break up Pan American. It proposes to establish one central company to handle all American inter-oceanic business under the name of the All-American Flag lines. Existing air lines would subscribe the capital stock and own the company, but none could have more than 25 per cent.

It is being assumed Mr. Tripple probably would head this new line. If so, he would be as much under the influence of the domestic airlines as anyone else.

Virtual Monopoly

McCarran said the new line would not be a monopoly, but he was expressing a legalism not true in fact. The set-up would be such that no other company than the American Flag line could operate, chiefly because it would not get government mail subsidies.

For all practical purposes (except in court) the new line would be a privately-owned, government-directed monopoly designed to compete with the similarly formed British, Dutch and other foreign competing lines. The idea behind this method is that one strong company will let this nation gain the first position in world air business, as we have more and better planes and pilots, and can operate more efficiently and cheaper.

Both Pan American and the domestic lines, therefore, are likely to fall in with the McCarran plan, or at least accept its general outline to settle the current controversy.

The civil aeronautics board probably will split on the issue, with some members favoring active American competition by extension abroad of various domestic airlines.

"Freedom of Air" Group

But the main objection is likely to come from the "freedom of air" boys, such as Vice President Wallace, State Assistant Secretary Berle and others who want to open up one world of the sky after the war, allowing all nations to go and come anywhere as they please.

Of course, the McCarran plan would freeze the existing sovereignties of nations over their air and require the state department to approve any foreign ship landings in the United States.

Thus this first of the post-war plans (which certainly will be followed if it gets all promised support) takes a mixed-moderate road, rejecting the highway of loose-hearted world uplift. It could not be otherwise in view of the attitude of the British and the prospects of other foreign air competition!

Explain Stalin Move

The domestic Commies have the final and probably correct interpretation of Stalin's surprising recognition of the Badoglio government. They say the Russian leader abandoned them on this, merely for the temporary diplomatic advantage which would accrue, and when this advantage has passed, he will discard Badoglio.

That explanation straightens the matter out for everyone except American diplomats who cannot move in such a zigzag course, embracing today what they intend to discard tomorrow.

Incidentally, American officials are eager to get Russia to open the promised third bombing front against Germany. Red fields are now closer to vital Nazi manufacturing points than our fields in Britain or, in many instances, at Foggia. Many think Germany could be blasted into submission yet with a three-way bombing campaign.

New Hampshire Vote

The partisans are still interpreting the New Hampshire primary result mainly for their own purposes, the Willkieites insisting he won and the Dewey supporters claiming a surprising showing. It was nobody's victory, only an inconsequential and inconclusive showing.

Bricker Discusses the Point

He Is Only Candidate Making Issue of New Deal.

GOV. JOHN W. BRICKER of Ohio, declares George Rothwell Brown in The New York Journal-American, has done an outstanding job of arousing Americans to the vital importance of the presidential election this year, wherever he has spoken. His forthright campaign, observes Mr. Brown, is in contrast with the position of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, who is a potential presidential nominee of the Republican party, yet has made no political speeches.

"Owing to this peculiar and unusual situation," asserts Mr. Brown, "if Gov. Bricker had not gone to the country as he has done, it is probable that the only political arguments that would have been presented to the people in the pre-convention period would have been the dangerously international ones of Wendell L. Willkie. Gov. Bricker has centered his attacks upon the regimentation and absolutism of one-man government in Washington, as brought about in an unprecedented three-term tenure of office."

Ohio's governor has performed another service, says Mr. Brown, by putting his campaign on a nationwide basis, instead of keeping it confined to local appearances. In this connection, it is noted that voters in widely separated parts of the country have reflected in their balloting the very principles which Gov. Bricker has been emphasizing—the necessity of breaking the New Deal hold on the executive machinery of government in Washington.

Mr. Brown concludes his observations on the Bricker crusade in this manner:

"Gov. Bricker's speeches, notably his remarkably able and effective Lincoln day address in Washington, have been given wide publicity. It is obvious that either Gov. Bricker has influenced public opinion, or that he has remarkably sensed the trend of political thought in this country today. Probably both conclusions are correct.

"By his addresses in Dallas and Tulsa, it is likely that Gov. Bricker has advanced the anti-New Deal cause in Oklahoma and increased Republican strength there. In carrying his campaign into the south, Gov. Bricker has nationalized the whole Republican cause in 1944. His theme has been that the country must rise above partisanship and sectionalism to save the republic.

"The voters of Philadelphia and those of Denver are now shown to be actuated by identical principles. The political trend is truly national in scope. If it gathers strength in the next seven months, it may sweep even some of the southern states from their traditional moorings."

INSTALLMENT XV

Federation of Democracies

ANOTHER group of proposals for the maintenance of peace are those which advocate some form of federation between nations. There is a broad range of such plans. They are mostly modifications of world supergovernment plans retaining the ideas of super-legislative and super-executive powers with military forces, but limited in membership to regions or to democracies.

The arguments for and against supergovernment already given are largely applicable here again. There is an added argument advanced in favor of some of these plans that non-democratic nations, impressed by the advantages of membership in the federation, would adopt democratic forms and seek admittance.

And to the arguments already given against such plans may be added that the setting up of such a federation on the basis of democratic ideology would, sooner or later, result in military counter-alliances and thus reduce the world to groups of gigantic armed camps.

A still simpler form of these plans limits the initial membership to Britain and the United States.

Under some of these plans for union with the United States, it is proposed that the component parts of the British Commonwealth would have independent membership in the supergovernment. This would mean no less than dissolution of the Empire by transference of their loyalties to the supergovernment just as would be the case if the forty-eight American states were given direct membership.

A still milder form of Federation or Union is the proposal of some sort of "legal unity" between the United States and Britain. The proposals include common citizenship, common currency, free trade, and military alliance.

Such an act would at once raise the fears of all other nations that this was a step to world mastery by the English-speaking people and thus promptly generate organized opposition among the other 90 per cent of the human race.

Various proposals have recently been made that there should be an immediate British-American long-term military alliance including other powers such as Russia and China to assure collaboration among nations in keeping the peace. Necessarily, any keeping of the peace implies collaboration between the United States and Britain, and with all the others. In that objective, we heartily agree. It is absolutely essential. The question is whether a military alliance is the right way to achieve such a purpose.

FORTUNATELY, for our guidance in this matter, the world has centuries of experience with military alliances. The last 150 years have seen hundreds of them.

We may begin with the Holy Alliance and its off-shoot, the Quadruple Alliance, which sprang from the Congress of Vienna in 1815. It died in a few years.

Between World War I and World War II, there were over fifty signed and sealed treaties or pacts having military provisions, all aimed, in reality or ostensibly, at preserving peace and preventing aggression. Over thirty of these military alliances were made prior to the rise of Hitler.

Notable among these military treaties to stop aggression in the pre-Hitler period was that signed at Locarno in October, 1925. The Locarno system of pacts was looked upon as a sure-fire guarantee against war in Europe. But in ten short years, Locarno ignominously collapsed because in that period there had been such fundamental changes in the interests of the signatories that, with the exception of France and Belgium, not one would raise a finger to defend what had been the agreed common purpose.

With the coming of Hitler in 1933, new shifts in the balance of power spread over Europe, and in 1934 we had four important military agreements. They comprised a nonaggression pact between Poland and Germany, which the French took very badly; a pact mutually guaranteeing their frontiers between Turkey, Greece, Rumania, Poland, Estonia, and Lithuania; the Rome Protocols" between Italy, Austria and Hungary.

The beginning of the Axis was made by Germany and Italy in 1936 and later extended to include Japan.

In 1939, Britain, France and Poland entered into agreements for "mutual assistance"; and there were Franco-British military guarantees to Rumania and Greece. France and Turkey agreed on mutual military aid in case of aggression. In this year, Germany signed the fateful agreement with Russia which ultimately involved understandings on the division of Poland, Rumania and the Baltic States. Thus we arrive at the beginning of World War II.

These are but a few specimens of military alliances over a century and a half. It may be said at once that military alliances have produced many wars but never a lasting peace.

THE first reason why a military alliance has always failed to produce peace lies in the very nature of such agreements. Its purpose must be to accomplish a political objective. Therefore, any military alliance is also a political alliance because each partner is affected by every political action of the other lest it stir up friction or a war. Every action of every ally, wise or unwise, at once becomes a family affair. We marry not only a wife but also all her in-laws. The French political policies after Versailles, which kept their partners, the British, in turmoil, fill pages of history.

The second reason for failure of long-term alliances is that whatever their specifications may be, they must commit their members to future action, the precise circumstances of which cannot be foreseen. Their concept necessarily leans to the status quo and, in the meantime, the unexpected happens.

The third reason for failure revolves around the potent phenomenon of fear. Study of past alliances indicates that no matter how high their purpose has been, they provoke counteraction by other nations. This grouping of opposition nations may be years in forming, but it has been proved inevitable.

The fourth reason that military alliances fail to keep peace is that out of the fear on both sides, armament grows. Increasing armament, prompted by fear, is the road to war.

These are the major reasons why every military alliance in history has failed. They are the reasons why they have served to make war rather than peace. They apply to any sizeable long-term military alliance. Whether it be the Big Four in 1815 or the Big Four in 1919, they all fail sooner or later. That would likewise be the case again if it were attempted by the Big Four of 1944.

Holland Fears Worst

Germans May Flood Invasion Territory in Line with Plan To Drag Down Europe in Ruin.

By A. K. VAN REIMSDIJK

In this special article from a Dutch correspondent writing for Associated Press in London, the possibility that the work of generations in reclaiming the Netherlands may be undone by desperate German militarists is explained.

FEARS that the Germans may destroy the Netherlands' complex drainage system, placing more than half of Holland under water, have been stirred by rumors that some coastal areas already have been flooded as a defense measure against Allied invasion.

Should the Germans go the limit on such plans, they would be reversing what Hollanders were prepared to do in defense of their country in 1940. Only, caring nothing for ultimate reconstruction, they would do it on a larger and more damaging scale. The Netherlands army had planned to inundate a strip of land extending in a north-south direction from the Zuider Zee down to the Meuse and Waal rivers, cutting off the Germans from the important coastal provinces of North and South Holland, containing most of the principal cities. But the Germans employed saboteurs to keep the Dutch from carrying out their plans.

Today, as military occupants of the Netherlands, they could and probably would flood everything the Dutch intended to inundate and in addition the portions which the Dutch intended to seal off from the Germans.

The Nazis have promised that if they fall they will drag all Europe down with them. Holland presents a ready-made inducement, because a large portion of the country is maintained as habitable only through the art of engineers. The country's whole life depends on a closely interlocked system of drainage canals which must be continuously and carefully controlled.

IN many sections of North Holland, the inhabitants live and work 12 to 15 feet below actual sea level. Should dikes be broken, homes would be destroyed and thousands would lose their lives.

The history of this reclaimed land is a long one. It began long before the start of the 18th century. Although mechanical pumping machinery was a thing undreamed of, the Dutch forefathers utilized gravity flow, building dikes around the marshes, digging canals for drainage and constructing crude sluices. The water was discharged through the dikes during periods of low water, and when high water levels outside prevented drainage, the water was stored in catch basins.

Later during the early 10th century, the screw pump was evolved, and it was then that windmills first appeared in Holland, giving the country the appearance for which it is famous.

The windmills opened up a whole new vista of possibilities. The water level in the reclaimed areas could now be lowered and maintained below the level of the water outside. It became feasible to reclaim additional large areas of below-sea-level land.

As the sea gave up more and more land then, the requirements for keeping it dry created an elaborate system of canals which came to be utilized for inland transport. The system expanded to such an extent that at last a vessel could traverse the entire country.

Often they sailed so far above a man's head that strangers were deluded into thinking Dutch barges could sail across meadows.

WITH invention of the steam engine, still another era was ushered in. Water engineers were now able to tackle a job as big as the reclaiming of Haarlem lake.

For centuries before that, and for the last time in 1826, tens of thousands of acres of rich soil had been submerged beneath the lake waters, the floods often threatening even Amsterdam, itself.

It took 12 years to remove the water of Haarlem lake. The result—45,000 acres of fertile land, hard-won land which may soon become the bottom of Haarlem lake once again.

Although the full scope of the Germans' plans is unknown, it can be assumed they will take full advantage of the setup. Let a few well-placed demolition squads do their work, and much of Holland will be back where it was centuries ago.

Any Allied invasion force would find itself suddenly confronted with a sea of water where Holland should be.

Whether the Nazi forces can destroy the will that built that land along with the land, itself, is another thing again. The auguries for their success are not favorable. The history of the reclaimed land speaks for that.

Germ of an Idea

By Truman Twill

No, Fishbert, the enemy has not been bombing the garage. The door flaps in the breeze that way because mama hooked it with the bumper and gave it a 70-horsepower adjustment when we had that last tank of gasoline.

But now that warm weather is coming, papa will have to get busy and do something about the garage. No, Fishbert, not the matches. Papa means something constructive.

He will have to get rid of those three washtubs full of old bottles and the box with the smashed tin cans; the pile of tomato stakes that have been underfoot all winter, tripping up unwary walkers and tearing their rayon stockings;

The almost empty bag of fertilizer left over from last summer's garden; the lawn mower that will have to keep right on chewing off the grass for the duration of the war; the sand box that was supposed to have been repaired during the winter months but wasn't;

The tent which was supposed to have been folded up and put away; the tent pole that kept falling down all winter on the soft heads of saps who would think of putting a tent pole in such a position; the bag of cement which has turned into solid rock;

The bag of lime that fell off the bench and spilled on the floor; the hoe, the rake, the shovel and the trowel; the lawn roller which will be needed one of these days; the oil can which has been lying on its side dripping oil on the floor;

The wheelbarrow that papa and mama have been crawling over to get into and out of the front seat; the clothesline that somehow came unwound and has been snaring careless feet; the flower boxes that were stored overhead and have been threatening to fall down;

The two tons of assorted leaves from points west which have blown in while the doors were open; the three-quarter-ton truckload of miscellaneous dirt mixed in with the leaves; the old shingles that were stacked in a corner at one time but are now mashed down in the debris;

And while we are at it, Fishbert, what do you think papa should do with that big piece of junk in the middle—the piece with the four wheels, windshield and the little sign on it that says A—To Save Tires Drive Under 35? It might just be a good idea to pile all the other junk in the back seat and push the whole thing down to the railroad crossing and wait for a train, hey Fishbert? Then the garage would be all cleaned up.

JAPS' ARTILLERY FIRE STRONGER IN SOLOMONS

Indications of Harder Road Northward for Allies.

By The Associated Press

BOUGAINVILLE, SOLOMON ISLANDS, March 18—(Delayed)—The men in charge of the heavy guns defending this allied beachhead against the furious Japanese assaults of the last 11 days agreed today the enemy is using more artillery here than they ever employed in the Solmons campaign—and using it more expertly

"The implication is that the allies will find increasingly improved enemy artillery as they push northward," observed Brig. Gen. William C. Dunckel, Reedsville, Va., artillery commander for the American division.

Brig Gen Leo Kreber, Columbus, O., artillery commander for the 37th division, said the two Americans divisions have fired more than 2,400 tons of high explosives into a Japanese-held area three by seven miles since March 8

On the other hand, Dunckel said, the Japanese who seldom fired more than 20 rounds a day in the Solomons battles, fired from 160 to 200 rounds March 8 and 9 and now are averaging 75 rounds a day concentrated largely on Piva airstrip

But damage has been slight.

Kreber's executive officer Col Kenneth Cooper Toledo, O., said Japanese artillery fire reached a peak of 400 shells March 9

Dunckel praised the effectiveness of his division's artillery fire and said "I've only lost four officers and six men by wounds in gun positions areas That's because our men have built such strong gun shelters"

Assessments on Milk Producers Dropped

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 22 — A government dairy program which has been criticized as "taxation without representation" will be eliminated under terms of a bill due for consideration in the house today.

A one-paragraph provision in the agriculture appropriations measure would ban continuance of war food administration (WFA) assessments against dairymen in 1939 areas throughout the country.

WFA officials said the levy, which ranges from one and a half to three cents a hundredweight of milk handled, has been ordered to pay local administrative costs of a milk allocation program set up to forestall rationing of the product

Hitler Willing To Sacrifice All His Axis Allies

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Germany's seizure of Hungary—a move which is partly military and partly political—is smart tactics, although it's a typical Hitlerian act of brutal ruthlessness against a country which has served the axis well.

It is a logical step in the Nazi dictator's preparations for the final defense of his inner fortress, towards which he is being steadily driven.

On it's political side it's calculated to terrorize the Balkans and unhappy little Finland into sticking to the sinking ship It ought to have the opposite effect, if horse-sense prevailed among the satellites, since it's fresh proof that the fuehrer will sacrifice them to the last man. However, fear rather than reason has been ruling them Their future attitude will depend heavily on Russia's further progress into the Balkan peninsula

Has Two Objectives

From the military standpoint Hitler is aiming at two prime objectives. (1) He is establishing a barrier across the great Danubian gateway into his inner fortress and (2) he is providing himself with a base from which to defend the Balkans against the onrushing Red armies and to keep his allies in line

One highly important aspect of the situation is, of course the vital necessity of protecting Rumania's Ploesti oil fields This represents Hitler's sole source of natural oil the rest being laboriously made synthetically. His oil barrel is dangerously low, and without lubrication neither his war industries nor his military machine can continue to run

Another point is that he must provide refuge for the host of soldiers in his shattered army on the Russian southern front Some of these are now fleeing into Bessarabia in an effort to reach Rumania; others are struggling in the Red traps, and still further forces are cooped up on the Crimea and will have to be transported by air or by sea to Rumanian ports.

Few Rail Connections

Hungary is the logical focal point for Hitler's operations in southeastern Europe Not only are there prime rail connections with Germany and with the Balkans, but the great Danube river forms one of the most important communications on the continent Small craft can travel it from the Black Sea clear into the reich and there cross by canal into the Rhine which will take them to the North sea.

This Danubian route becomes doubly important to Hitler now that he has lost the rich agricultural lands of the Ukraine upon which he banked to keep his people well fed. There still remain the endless wheat and corn fields of Rumania and Bulgaria for him to draw upon, and the Danube provides transport for this and other products

Thus the Danube comes pretty close to being Germany's life-line

The Balkan crisis is in a state of flux. Beyond the fact that Hitler has occupied Hungary with troops, reports are confused.

There are indications that some Hungarians are trying to revolt against the Nazi gangster. It's possible that further Russian successes may inspire other resistance to Hitler in the Balkans, since there's small love for Germany on the peninsula.

So far as regards Hungary, while it is highly independent, there are considerable elements there which will support Hitler. When I was in Budapest just after Munich I witnessed what then was a strange sight—a parade of men belonging to a new political order. The police watched them carefully, but I saw paraders surreptitiously giving one another the Nazi salute signed and the board yesterday selected Mrs. Fetter in his place

Controversy Over Pay

The final stages of the deadlock were centered around the salary of the deputy. The Democratic members of the board, apparently feeling certain the deputyship would come to a Democrat, were reported to have favored either leaving the salary at $2,400 where it had been for several years or cutting it to not less than $2,100 The Republicans took a stout stand to cut the figure to $1,200 but said when they deadlocked with the Democrats over this figure, the secretary of state indicated he thought that salary wasn't large enough The Republicans then settled on the $1,800 figure and it finally was accepted by the Democrats.

New Chairman Named

Harold Clark, one of the Democratic members of the board, was elected board chairman, succeeding James Lauer of Prospect, the other Democratic member. Republicans on the board are Mrs. Cora Rexroth and George Thomas of Prospect.

Mrs. Houtz, as clerk, will continue in the position she has held for the last two years

Mrs Fetter, the new deputy clerk, has had experience working with election board records, having served as a part-time clerk during busy periods in past years In recent months she has been working at the county ration board headquarters. Arrangements were made for her to take over her new duties at once

Registration Nearing Close

One of the first tasks the new clerk and deputy will center on is the handling of registrations for the May primary. Officials sounded a reminder today that April 10 is the last day for registrations or transfers of registrations.

livery on the house floor, he added that 'this is not a proposal for international cooperation * * * (but) a proposal by Great Britain, supported by other debtor countries, aided and abetted by our present administration, not only to bleed the United States white but to destroy her very blood-making organs."

Renewing an earlier attack an unofficial treasury proposals for an $8,000,000,000 gold-based fund to stabilize foreign exchanges, Smith, a member of the house banking and currency committee, submitted a chart which he said showed that this country would contribute $1,172,000,000 in gold against $420,000,000 by 30 other countries.

FIRST CHAPLIN WITNESS TO BE CALLED TODAY

Hollywood Film Actor's Trial in Second Day.

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, March 22—The Charlie Chaplin trial entered its second day today with strong indications the first government witness would be placed on the stand before the end of the afternoon session

Attorney Jerry Giesler, defending the white-haired movie actor on charges of Mann act violation, is equipped with 10 peremptory challenges to fire at the prospective jury which, at the close of yesterday's session, numbered seven men and five women.

Red-haired Charles H Carr, the prosecutor, would not state whether he would employ any of the six peremptories which the law allows him, but did say he expected to call his first witness this afternoon.

Giesler and Carr told Federal Judge J. F. T. O'Connor the questions they would like to have put to the prospective jurors, and then the judge took over the interrogation.

Did they know any of the attorneys involved in the Chaplin civil and criminal cases? Had they formed any opinion of the merits of the case through reading the newspapers or otherwise? Would they be prejudiced for or against the actor by the fact that he's a British subject? ALL-MALE JURY CHOSEN TO HEAR LONERGAN CASE

Canadian Flier Goes on Trial in Death of Wife.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 22 — An all-male jury empowered to decree the death penalty was ready today for the opening thrusts and counter-thrusts in Wayne Lonergan's trial for life.

In keeping with the trial's fast-moving tempo, Assistant District Attorney Jacob Grumet said his opening remarks would be brief

Edward V. Broderick, chief defense counsel, indicated he might postpone his statements until after the state's case has been submitted.

Grumet already has been forced by the defense to disclose he will attempt to use the Canadian aircraftman's confession in an effort to prove he strangled and bludgeoned his rich young wife to death in her apartment last Oct. 24.

However, the prosecutor admitted during the jury selection yesterday that Lonergan did not sign the statement.

Grumet has disclosed, too, the names of 29 witnesses he expects to call, including cafe society friends of the Lonergans.

Broderick made repeated mention of possible psychiatric testimony and evidence bearing on insanity.

Survey Shows How Industrial Leaders Look at Reconversion

Post-War Period Believed by Ohioans To Have Headaches As Well As Opportunities.

(Editor's note: 'Postwar planning in industry.' With the war not yet over, how much of it is fact? How much 'spirit?' What of postwar employment, postwar markets, postwar prices? What concretely, is being done toward "reconversion" to the economy of peace? Is there reason to believe our returning service men will actually want to return to their old manner of life? What new factors will enter the picture when peace comes?

(The Associated Press offers herewith the first of three articles based on a survey of Ohio industry. In no sense definitive, it offers nevertheless an up-to-the-minute study of what a typical cross-section of war-busy executives is thinking More than a score of industries big and small, were surveyed and additionally, top-men in such diverse fields as major league baseball medicine, psychiatry, state employment, banking and labor were interviewed).

By The Associated Press

Reconversion is a war-been sawbuck word much in the public mind, and to representative Ohio industrialists it means, 1—Post-war opportunity, 2—Post-war headache

It can be said at the outset that although a number of war factories have resumed peacetime production on an uncertain and in most cases fractional scale, reconversion now is mainly a study thought in the business mind.

As one man close to Cincinnati industry put it, 'for the first time since before Pearl Harbor, the top men are getting a little intellectual leisure to think about post-war problems."

Production Demand Slackens

"The period when production had to go up and up and up every week is over," commented Morris Edwards, executive secretary of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce "The great rush is past and the main job is keeping up the pace, which is not so taxing intellectually as constantly figuring out how to go twice as fast"

A high-spot survey of the state shows these main developments or trends of thought.

1—Machine tool builders already have experienced a substantial slackening of war orders and can't expect peace orders until their customers, makers of consumer goods, start retooling for new models Complicating this is the fact that many general purpose tools, like radial drills, turret lathes, etc, made for war work, are readily adaptable to peace work, thus saturating this market.

2—Tire and automobile and trucks part makers expect heavy civilian demand to keep them going for a long period after the war with little reconversion at all

3—Specialized industries, such as aluminum and glass, are looking to brand new markets to carry them with a minimum of change from war-time methods.

Aong tangible developments in post-war production, one Cleveland stove company is making stoves for civilians again One Cincinnati machine tool plant is known to be working on tools for the first really new automobile models due to appear after the auto industry has put out enough 1942 models to satisfy immediate demands

A number of factories which never got into full and steady war production because of fluctuating demand, have been able to keep their peace-time production dovetailed within the limits of availability of materials An example is a firm which, in addition to war products, has been able to keep making newsboys' canvas carrier bags, carpenter aprons, etc.

The rest of reconversion in Ohio is planning, with much of it uncertain.

Manufacturers now do not know what post-war costs—labor costs, material costs, distribution costs—will be, what the nation's tax structure will be, nor what government attitude toward business will be.

Some are confident, like the Mersman Bros. Corp, table manufacturer of Celina, whose general manager, Henry W. Wingrove, wrote:

"All in all, we look for a time wherein the amount of business done by any company will be measured by ingenuity expended by the sale company. We think there will be sufficient consumption to keep our nation's production at a high level."

A different view is taken by Bond Houser Sr., president of Troy Sunshade Co, who said, "If there is any chance for enterprise and success ahead for business in the next 20 years, it is surely entirely depending upon the kind of government which we will have. I don't suppose anybody believes anything else but that we shall have very much of a socialized form of government."

John J. Rowe, president of Cincinnati's Fifth-Third Union Trust Co., one of the nation's 65 largest banks, said:

"Industry converted to war and it can convert from war. It can take reconversion in stride and the nation's banking structure is fully able to finance the change without government subsidy or interference. Unless the wage structure gets way out of line and fabulous demands knock out all our money values, I can see no demand on money that private enterprise can't meet"

William Jack of Cleveland's controversial Jack & Heintz Co. regards the renegotiation law as a key to the situation and wants legislation to permit a five per cent profit after taxes, the profit to be earmarked for postwar operations

Service Men Promised Jobs

"Every service man formerly employed by us," he said, "has been promised a job when he comes home The government has an obligation to see that industry has the money to carry out such plans"

Other uncertainties include disposition of government-owned-or-financed war plants, like the $155,000,000 Wright Aeronautical Corp factory here

Of this Rowe says, 'let nature take its course

'Maybe, if it's not needed for airplane engines after the war," he explained, 'somebody can divide it up and put three factories out there making numerous different products"

Others contend the problem must be met directly, some holding that government-owned plants could be an opening for government entry into business with competitive industries

Capt. Slack Barrett of Cincinnati, head of a barge line and quarrying firm, commented, "It's hard to make plans for reconversion until you know what you're going to reconvert to"

'So many new materials are becoming available," he said, "that a manufacturer would be foolish to retool his plants for pre-war products and then find there are easier and better materials for the job"

Edwards pointed to the probabilities that price ceilings will continue for some time after the war and raised a question whether some companies could gear mass production methods to the necessarily gradual process of reconversion and still hold to their familiar price ranges

"In the automobile business," he said, "I don't know how Chevrolet, for instance, could produce only 10,000 cars a year. A custom price would have to be charged for a mass-production $1,000 car."

He also warned against "expecting too much" of reconversion and post-war industry, pointing out that despite great expectations, radio did not become a major industry until ten years after the last war

Still another hurdle is distribution, where, as seen by Raymond C Cosgrove, vice president of Cincinnati's Crosley Corp, the public will continue to demand the limit in service.

"The American public," he said, has learned to expect displays of merchandise where they can be readily seen. It expects to purchase these items on deferred payments. It expects these products to be guaranteed and immediate attention from qualified people when they have the slightest trouble When products are abused or neglected, it expects parts to be forthcoming almost immediately * * *."

Russian People Given First Look at U. S. Election

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, March 22—The Russian people were given their first press discussion of American presidential possibilities for 1944 today in an article in Red Star, organ of the Red army.

Political Writer Maxim Mendelson quoted New York's Wall Street Journal as predicting Roosevelt's renomination and election.

(The Wall Street Journal said today the article in Red Star evidently referred to a story from Washington last September which said the consensus of the nation's congressmen was that President Roosevelt would be the Democratic candidate in 1944 and that he had better than an even chance of reelection.)

Mendelson said Wendell Willkie and Thomas E. Dewey had strong, active backers and that a deadlock might occur which would result in the Republican nomination of a dark horse.

Dewey, Mendelson said, "is a man of great silence, but according to the press he is the most popular man among the Republicans"

"Gov. John W. Bricker of Ohio is not so popular as Willkie. He has made but few statements on politics in general, but he still has a chance for the nomination."

Glenwood Defeats St. Mary To Win Gra-Y Championship

Glenwood "A" climaxed an undefeated season with a 43 to 14 victory over St. Mary's hard-fighting Irish at the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon to win the 1942-44 Gra-Y basketball championship. Pearl Street, coached by Carl Willmeth, grabbed third place with a 33 to 7 drubbing of Greenwood in the consolation preliminary.

Glenwood, champion in league "A" during the regular campaign experienced little difficulty in downing Dan McGinnis' St. Mary parochials, who were the tillists in Division "B." St. Mary enjoyed the exhilirating feeling of being ahead only once, in the early portion of the opening quarter, 4 to 2. After Center Rinderle dumped in a short set shot to knot the game at 4-all, Glenwood had smooth sailing.

Rinderle, Glenwood center, jumped his season total to 121 with a 21-point outburst against St. Mary, which included 10 baskets and one free throw. Maloney, Irish center, led the losers with six markers on three goals. In the preliminary, Jack Leffler, star Pearl Street forward, potted 16 points on seven fielders and two free throws for individual glory. Snyder was high man for the vanquished Greenwood team with four points on two baskets. Greenwood, coached by Dutch Browne, suffered a hard blow when Greg Graham, high scoring center, contracted the measles before the championship contest.

Both St. Mary and Glenwood had notched five triumphs against no setbacks in second round competition to win the crowns. They also finished on top in first round activity. Greenwood wound up second in the second round in League "A" with three wins and two losses while Pearl was content with runner-up spot in League "B" with four victories and a sole defeat.

Glenwood's Drake touched off scoring in the title game with a sucker shot. Forward Manalel bounced back for St. Mary with a short bucket to tie the count. The Irish went in front on Smith's bucket but the lead was short-lived as Rinderle poured in a sucker shot for Glenwood. The champs then went into a two-point lead on a basket by Rinderle and stretched the advantage to four markers on Drake's two-pointer. The second quarter opened with Glenwood finding the range for four more points—two baskets—to go into an eight-point lead. The buckets were racked up by Messenger and Rinderle. Maloney came back for St. Mary with two baskets and the Irish were within four points of the League "A" title-holders. Messenger made a sucker shot for Glenwood and Rinderle followed with another of frequent baskets. The first half ended with Drake dumping in a short shot and the Glenwood boys sported a 10-point lead which they steadily increased throughout the second half until they completed the entire four quarters 29 points to the good.

Speaker Puts 2 "Black Sox" Players on 1910-20 All-Stars

TRIS SPEAKER

By CHIP ROYAL
AP Features Sports Editor

CLEVELAND, March 22 — Tris Speaker, rated by many as the greatest centerfielder of all-time, is another baseball man who never selected an all-star team because he thought it was unfair to do it on an all-time basis.

But, when Connie Mack suggested that AP Features have five men pick the best players by decades, Speaker agreed to follow Mack and Honus Wagner.

So old "Spoke" names the all-star team he saw play during the 1910-1920 era:

Here it is:

Catcher, Ray Schalk, White Sox.

Pitchers, Walter Johnson, Senators; Christy Mathewson, Giants; Chief Bender, Athletics.

First base, George Sisler, Browns.

Second base, Eddie Collins, Athletics.

Third base, Buck Weaver, White Sox.

Shortstop, Honus Wagner, Pirates.

Utility infielder, Jimmy Dykes, Athletics.

Outfielders, Ty Cobb, Tigers; Babe Ruth, Yankees; Joe Jackson, White Sox. Utility, Ed Roush, Reds.

"Attempting to recall players of 25 years ago makes any selections a difficult job," says Speaker. "But I think this team would compare favorably with any you could name.

"I have not named a left-handed pitcher because I have Ruth in the outfield, and he was among the pitching greats of that time, in addition to being the outstanding outfielder," concludes Tris.

Let's look at Spoke's team.

He left off the best centerfielder during 1910-1920. His name was Tristram Speaker, a Texan who started as a southpaw pitcher in the minors.

Anytime the hot stove league fellows get together, they always name Speaker as THE centerfielder. The modern gardeners are judged by the way they shape up against the Old Gray Eagle. He could cover ground out there like nobody's business.

Outside of that one omission, Speaker's team is tough to beat. He includes three players named by Wagner. They are Honus, the great shortstop, Mathewson and Cobb.

Two of the famous "Black Sox" of 1919, Weaver and Jackson, are named on Spoke's squad. But, most baseball men who were around in those days insist that these two have never been equalled on any team.

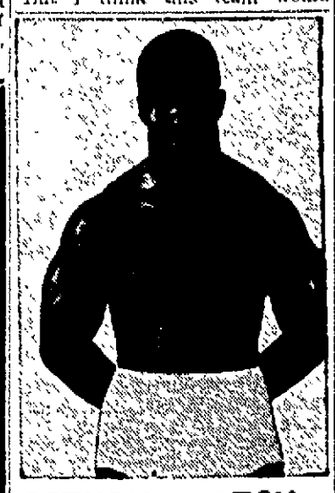
Next—Bill McKechnie names the All-Star team for 1920-1930.

McKechnie Promises More Power at Bat

By The Associated Press

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., March 22—Manager Bill McKechnie of the Cincinnati Reds promises more power in his batting order this year, and since any power would be more power, he ought to be right as usual.

He says he plans to shuffle the order and experiment and try things and men until he finds the combination that can knock a man in from third if a man gets to third.



RETURN MATCH, THURSDAY

The Black Panther asked for a return match with Whitey Walberg and will get his chance Thursday Night in the two-hour main event at the Marion Armory. They met three weeks ago in one of the best matches ever seen at the local arena, and Walberg won the decision by a very close margin. The Panther who has recently returned from the army, thought his timing was off and with the aid of a couple of more matches would be back to his old self.

The balance of the card will be all-star with a double semi-final (two 45-minute matches). Jack "Tiger" Moore will wrestle Jackie Nichols in one while Frankie Hart and Angelo Martinelli meet in the other. Prices: Gen. 50 cts., Resv. Ringside 75 cents and kids under 14 years, 25 cts. Chicago Team Favored To Defeat Oklahoma

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 22—The St. Paul Demons of Chicago were established an eight-point favorite to beat the Oklahoma Aggies in their feature semi-final game in the national invitation basketball tourney at Madison Square Garden tonight.

In the first semi-final, game Kentucky plays St. John's of Brooklyn. Kentucky ruled a seven-point favorite.

The winners tonight will meet for the championship Sunday night with the two losers meeting in a consolation game.

The Utes have replaced Arkansas in the western NCAA playoffs that open at Kansas City Friday. If they win there, then beat the eastern NCAA champion next Tuesday, they will qualify for the March 30 game.

Three Eye Fan Made Winning Pitcher of Tribes' Klieman

By The Associated Press

LAFAYETTE, Ind., March 22—It took strapping Ed Klieman, Cleveland's newest pitching prize, seven years—and the help of a baseball fan—to reach the major league.

A fan actually climbed out of the stands and taught him pointers on throwing a sinker and Klieman has developed his pitch to such perfection that last year he won 23 games for Buffalo, more of the International league.

Cleveland called in the Norwood, O., youth for a late-season try in '43, and in his big league debut he shut out the Boston Red Sox for nine innings, only to lose 1-0, in the 10th inning.

With the sinker came a vicious curve and extra steam until now Klieman has one of the finest changes of pace of any of the 10 pitchers in the Indian camp.

But the fellow responsible for all this? Klieman forgot to ask him his name and until he finds out, this fairy godfather type of person must be known only as "the No. 1 baseball fan of Cedar Rapids, Iowa."

"It was back in 1942," reflects Klieman, "when I was with Cedar Rapids in the Three Eye league. There was an old guy about 60 who never missed a game. One day I was warming up and the old gent comes up in back of me and calmly asks if I knew how to throw a sinker.

"I said: 'No, pops, I don't know much about a sinker—suppose you want to teach me, huh?' And then I kinda laughed.

"But the old fellow took it serious and got right down to business. He showed me how to finger the ball and how to snap the wrist to make it skip like a waterbug. Everyday he would come down out of the stands and watch me warm up and suggest new things. I was beginning to feel like Cinderella.

"I started winning games with that sinker. It brought me 23 games last year and I hope it does as well this season."

The list of 1-A Indians rose to four after outfielder Cliff Mapes, the most promising rookie in camp, received a reclassification notice from his California draft board. Mapes joins a group that includes Manager Lou Boudreau, Pitcher Vernon Kennedy and Infielder Russ Peters.

A farewell dinner honoring Robert Kelly and Walter Moore, Marion attorneys, was held Tuesday night at Hotel Harding by members of the Marion County Bar association. Both are leaving for military service. Mr. Kelly was inducted Tuesday into the Merchant Marine and Mr. Moore will leave Friday to report to Princeton University, N. Twenty-four members were present for the dinner and several joined the group later for the social hour. Judge Hector Young, a guest, presented both of the honored guests with a gift from the association.

Six Seniors To Try for Elks' Award

Financial aid in further study was offered yesterday by the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks to seniors in the upper tenth of their class at Harding High school who can prove that they are in need. All these records will be bound together and sent with a picture of the contestant to a national committee of judges, who will decide winners from among unique entries. Six seniors at Harding indicated that they would try for the awards when a meeting was called Tuesday. Aid will be given through payments to the school or college of the winner's choice. The amount of $600 will be offered as first prize, $500 second, $400 third, $300 fourth, and $200 fifth. Ten prizes of $100 each will also be awarded.

GIPSY SMITH HEARD BY CAPACITY CROWD

Repentance Is Theme in Third Evangelistic Service.

A capacity crowd of approximately 1,600 persons filled Epworth Methodist church Tuesday night for the third service of the Gipsy Smith union evangelistic mission. The theme of the evangelist was repentance. The union choir presented an offertory number, Mrs. Smith sang and Rev. E. H. Wierth of First Evangelical and Reformed church read Scripture and offered prayer. Prof. J. W. Yoder of Huntington, Pa., led the choir and congregational singing and Rev. E. M. Hertzler made announcements.

As his text the evangelist took the fourteenth and fifteenth verses of the first chapter of Mark, and enlarged on the words of Christ. "The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand: repent ye, and believe the gospel." Many of his illustrations were drawn from his life as a gipsy boy and from his work in the field of evangelism.

Stating that the most unpopular and most neglected theme in the Bible is that of pointing to the sin of the sinner, he declared its importance in reconciling the sinner to God.

In dealing with the need for repentance he asked "What is repentance?" "It is not conviction of sin," he said, "for if you know God's will but refuse to obey you will become hardened in sin. Nor is it being sorry that your sin was found out, nor promising to be good. Repentance is sincerity, honesty, obedience to the will of God, turning from sin. Repentance is unconditional surrender, cessation of hostility toward God. Be out and out for Christ. Give up your worldly ways. It is a big journey from sin to God. Above all, be sincere about your repentance, don't go to church unless you are sincere. The only true repentance is repentance that 'worketh salvation'."

Announcements included Friday as "Young People's" night, Sunday afternoon men's service, Sunday night service for women. A conference of personal workers for the campaign will be held in the Epworth church annex tonight at 7.

MARION RIFLES' FLAG IS PRESENTED TO CO. H

Concluding Official Act of Former Home Guard Unit.

The final official gesture of the now inactive Marion Rifles was performed when Dr Thomas Sutherland, major of the Rifles company and Bob Brown, captain, presented their large garrison flag to Co. H, local state guard unit, during a regular drill period last night in the Armory. The flag, presented to Sgt Kermit Taylor and Pfc. Donald Neimeister, who were color bearers for the Marion Rifles, will be flown over the Armory on state occasions, Capt. Carl Ebert announced.

Two merit ribbons were awarded to Pfc. Neimeister and Pfc. Howard Fogle on completion of a year's training. The award is based on the attendance percentage and conduct during the year and must include a camp period. Neimeister had 100 per cent and Fogle 98 per cent attendance records. Last night also marked the final drill for Sgt Harold Dickerson, who leaves soon for military training.

A shooting match and work drill were announced for April 2 from 1 to 4 p. m. Lunch will be served. Capt. Ebert said a new drill schedule will be adopted during the next quarter starting April 1.

Drill last night included interior guard duty with Pfc Lawrence Edgington as instructor, special operations formations under Cpl Albert Ward and a lecture by Capt Ebert on the handling of crowds.

RED CROSS DRIVE REPORT THURSDAY

Fund Now at Two-Thirds of $56,000 Goal.

Red Cross workers were reminded today that a meeting will be held tomorrow at 8 p. m. in the War Fund headquarters on East Center street for chairmen to give their latest reports.

Officials hoped reports tomorrow will put the Marion county campaign over the $56,000 goal. Already more than two-thirds has been collected and workers are canvassing as much of their territory as possible before the drive closes on March 31.

Yesterday's mail contained quite a few checks sent into the office, Miss Lillian Plack announced today, apparently coming from families who had been missed. Others are requested to mail their contributions if it is more convenient. Phone calls from prospective contributors are also welomed at either the Red Cross office, 2439, or at War Fund headquarters, 2864, where arrangements will be made to have a representative call.

New Speed-Up Plan Adopted for Draft

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., March 22—Effective at once, Ohio selective service registrants will know within 24 hours after their preinduction physical examination whether they have been accepted for military service.

The speed-up announced yesterday, affecting Ohio only, was worked out by the Fifth service command and the state selective service headquarters here, Col. H. E Boucher, assistant state selective service director, said.

Heretofore the draft status notification was held up until the blood analysis was received at the induction station, usually a delay of four or five days.

Under the new plan, Boucher said, the registrant's medical report will be sent to his local draft board as soon as the examination is completed. Results of the blood test will be forwarded to the board after they are received from the laboratory.

Boucher said the new system was devised so the registrant would know almost immediately if he were accepted and also to make the accepted men available for service sooner.

Registrants have a minimum of 21 days between mailing of their notifications and actual induction.

TEACHERS HEAR TALKS ON PROMOTION POLICY

Basis of Advancing Students Discussed at Meeting.

A panel discussion on "A Pupil Promotion Policy for Marion County Schools" was featured at a meeting of the Marion County Teachers' association Monday night at Edison Junior High school with members and guests from the state department of education, Ohio State university and Ohio Wesleyan university taking part. Dr. Matthews, professor of education at O. W. U., introduced by D. T. Mills, Marion county superintendent of schools, was in charge.

The discussion was on two opposing policies submitted for consideration. The first question was "Should schools adopt a continuous progress point of view?" Another was "Should promotion be in terms of total maturity of the pupil?" Arguments in favor of the "continuous progress" policy included the points that a pupil having to repeat work he has already had dulls his interest and initiative, penalizes him because of his lack of native ability to learn and clogs classes with slow learners. On the opposite side was the argument that this policy would give pupils attitudes of "it's easy to get through" and "why should I work?"

The second topic for discussion dealt with the question of pupils' social, physical and achievement development. An argument against promoting pupils or holding them back on these conditions was that it would be hard to provide means of "measuring" a child's maturity from the various points of view.

Speakers were Mrs. Verna Walters, supervisor of elementary education, state department of education, Dr. S. L. Pressy, professor of educational psychology O. S. U., Dr. W. L. Sprouse, director of instruction, state department, Dr. Charles S. Berry, director of the bureau of special and adult education, O. S. U., Ivan R Barnhart, superintendent of Greer Camp schools, chairman of the educational committee, Marion county schools, Mrs. Goldie McLain, classroom teacher, Campbell school, and Dr. Matthews.

Music was presented by a grade boys' chorus of the Caledonia school under the direction of Mrs Mary Salisbury. Miss Patricia Pommert played a trombone solo accompanied by Mrs Salisbury. A clarinet solo was presented by Miss Romana Cox accompanied by Homer Timson.

Bair, Bexley player with 12 points to his credit, took high scoring place. Marshall Browne was high scorer of the Harding team with 6. The Bexley team which was composed of senior non-varsity players averaging six feet three inches towered over the Marion team which has a five foot nine-inch average.

Marion players were: Moore, forward, with no score; Williams, forward, with two field goals and one free throw; Wahlgren, center, with one field goal; Grimm, guard, with one field goal and one free throw, and Browne, guard, with three field goals.

Mrs. Karl Dune Named President of P.-T.A.

Mrs Karl Dune was elected president for 1944-45 in a meeting of the Pearl Street P.-T. A. Tuesday night at the school. Officers were elected following the presentation of the slate by Mrs. Roy Newell, chairman of the nominating committee. The new song books were used for the first time when Mrs. Mary Houghton led in singing to open the meeting.

Mrs Robert Cleveland was chosen vice president, Mrs. Roland Leeper, treasurer, and Mrs Lewis Ashworth, secretary. Mrs Robert Cleveland conducted devotions. A gift was presented to Marion Blessing, custodian of the building, and a contribution of $10 was made to the Red Cross War Fund. Plans were made for a cafeteria supper April 21 at the school.

Mrs E. E. Holt, program chairman, was in charge of the program. She introduced Miss Edith Brown, social science instructor at Harding High school who presented a panel on "Citizenship." John McKinney led a discussion on the question "Should the voting age be lowered to include 18 to 20-year-old citizens?" Also taking part were Elizabeth Zuspan, Robert Blake, Robert Peters, and Joan Smith.

The award for having the largest number of parents present was won by the second grade taught by Miss Fleta Hankel. During the social hour Miss Audrey Bolander and Miss Margaret Selter presided at the table.

Preceding the program hour June Evans and Robert B. Gibson talked on the youth movement and discussed the need of a youth center in Marion.

GROUP NAMES COMMITTEE ON JUVENILE DRINKING

Liquor Dealers to Present Age Card Plan to Mayor.

The Marion County Liquor Dealers association, at a meeting in Hotel Harding Tuesday night, took favorable action on the proposal that age cards be issued to youths of questionable age, to be presented whenever they order beer or stronger drinks. Members pointed out the cards, which they hope to have issued by the police, would eliminate the age problem for dealers. Joe Sansotta, Maurice Coen and Thomas Fisher were named a committee to contact Mayor Harry L. Dowler to see if the city will back the proposal. The plan was reported in use in Mansfield, Tiffin and other cities.

Mr. Sansotta and Jack Vlachis were named to contact OPA officials about price adjustments in connection with tax increases to become effective April 1.

Mr. Fisher, secretary of the association, who served as chairman of the Red Cross war fund drive among liquor dealers in Marion city, reported the dealers had donated a total of $361 to the fund.

O.W.U. PROFESSOR GIVES ROTARY TALK

"The World State" Discussed at Luncheon Meeting.

"The World State" was the subject chosen by Dr. Hastings Eells, head of the history department at Ohio Wesleyan university, when he appeared as guest speaker at the weekly Rotary club meeting at Hotel Harding yesterday.

Dr. Eells listed the four different kinds of world states. The Roman empire was the first, comprising the then known world. In the second type, the nation-state, two subsidiaries were found: the city-state with walls, courts and regulated trade and the feudal state, representing loyalty of one man to a stronger personality. The Magna Charter, Dr. Eells said, was the beginning of the nation-state.

The third and fourth dynamic and static states are represented by Germany and the United States, respectively. The world state, Dr. Eells believes, is the plan that is so necessary now. He reminded his listeners that the first world war left things half done and unless we learn to make peace, we will have to fight again. The world state, as regarded by many as the answer, is still to be tried, he said.

Dr. Eells concluded by saying, "Let us take our nation, improve it, make it a Christian nation and endeavor to get the other nations to become Christian then each country will help each other."

Through a misunderstanding of dates, Miss Cleo Dawson Smith, originally scheduled for yesterday's program will be guest speaker next week instead of Dr Eells as was announced.

Dr. Warren P. Behan, interim pastor of Trinity Baptist church, was introduced as the newest member. He was formerly a member of the Rotary clubs at Sioux Falls, S. D. and Ottawa, Kas.

Guests included: Sgt. King Keller, Staff Sgt. Samuel Birnbaum, Lt. (jg.) George Stafford and Fred Parnell, all of Marion, Edward Southworth and Henry V. Sinderman of Cleveland and Ray Walsh of Chicago.

Officers Selected By Oakland Heights P.-T.A.

Mrs. Irvin Myers was elected president of the Oakland Heights P.-T. A. Tuesday afternoon at the school. Also elected were Mrs. Donald Phelps, first vice president, Mrs. Eleanor Hampshire, second vice president; Mrs. Howard Zeigler, secretary; Mrs Glen Kellogg, treasurer; Mrs. Gerald Neimeyer, representative to council; and Mrs. Richard Plantz, alternate. Mrs. Myers will attended the annual P.-T. A. conference in Columbus March 30.

Joseph E Schlosser, assistant Boy Scout field director, talked on organing a cub pack of boys in the Oakland Heights district. A talk with illustrating slides on "Proper Care Means Longer Wear" was given by Miss Ruth Kleinmaier. Gary Murray presented a puppet show. The next meeting will be a fun party, April 18.

In the Norman era, the Danes were the most powerful nation in Europe.

Be Quick To Treat Bronchitis

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)

WHEAT AND OATS PRICES HOLD STEADY

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, March 22—Wheat and oats prices generally held steady today, but rye eased toward the close following a higher opening. Good demand for cash wheat at all markets and the relatively light supply imparted strength to futures. Selling of rye came from both commission houses and local traders.

Flour prices are now quoted about 10 to 12 cents under the ceiling, the northwestern miller, a trade publication, reported, but business continues very dull. Most domestic buyers are covered for 90 days ahead and there is a complete absence of government purchasing, the publication stated.

RAILS AND OILS LEAD MARKET

Carry Burden of Advancing Prices; Some Profit Taking Appears.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, March 22—Rails and lower-priced oils led the stock market today in another advancing session although here and there profit cashing trimmed peak prices.

Top-flight industrials benefitted from the uptrend and gained fractionally along with the more active issues toward the fourth hour but for the most part moved in only modest volume.

Turnover was swelled by numerous blocks of 1,000 to 3,000 or so shares, chiefly of petroleum concerns.

Touching new highs for the year or longer were New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Erie, Ohio Oil, Pure Oil, Western Union and the Standard Gas & Electric preferreds. Supported were Chrysler, Skelly and Northern Pacific.

LOVE'S FAIR HORIZON

By ADELE GARRISON

THERE was something stimulating in Hugh Grantland's announcement that he needed me in the forthcoming consultation for the deception of Shumway, the suspicious taxi man who had brought Hugh and Lee Chow to the farmhouse. But I tried to let no hint of my feeling escape me.

Instead I said, "Thank you," perfunctorily, and he replied in evident parody, "You're welcome, I'm sure," and then walked toward the bedroom.

"I'll bring back Lee Chow's dishes in a jiffy," he said, "and put them on the dinner wagon. Thus the game will not be delayed."

Leaves Suite

With my exit from the suite two minutes later, wheeling the dinner wagon, my program for the next half hour clicked smoothly. I transferred the soiled dishes from the dinner wagon, piled them on the trays in the dumb waiter, sent it down to the kitchen, and left the wagon in its accustomed corner in the back hall. Then I went downstairs, finding Kate just hanging the last coat on its hanger.

I knew what would thrill my faithful, melodrama-minded farm helper more than anything else, and I spoke quickly.

"Katie," I said, as though casually, "will it be too much for you to take all that clothing up to my father's suite, and deliver it to Major Grantland?"

"Too much?" she echoed extravagantly. "Ees eet too much to ask vun duck too svim? Maybe," her eyes rolled ingratiatingly in my direction, "maybe, dot major he vant to talk to me now about detacatuff stoof."

Instructions

"No, Katie," I said firmly. "That will come later this afternoon. Major Grantland will be very busy for the next half hour. Just take the clothing up—here, give me two of the hangers—and when you have delivered them, come right down again, unless Major Grantland gives you some task to do. But he won't, right now, I am sure, so don't ask him if he wants you to do anything, or you'll make him angry."

"Oh, I know dot baby!" Katie said with a toss of her head and a disrespect which I ignored. "He no vants anybody to open mout till he nod hees head. Vell, he don't get no keeck by me. I hand heem dees clothes, and I beet eet down stairs as eef devil man was after me."

"Oh, I don't think you'll have to move as fast as that, Katie," I told her, and moved toward my studio as with a delighted giggle she began gathering up the clothing.

I found the Ticers smoking contentedly and looking at the photo magazines, but they sprang to their feet—a result of Mrs. Ticer's training, I knew—as soon as I entered the room.

"We'll go upstairs now, to see Major Grantland," I said, "We'll go up the front stairway, then we won't interfere with Katele, who's bringing up a lot of clothing from the laundry. Jerry, will you carry these for me?"

Slow Progress

"Sure," Jerry said with a wide grin, and I handed him the hangers of clothing. Purposely I made our progress to the second floor as slow as possible, and thus was able to dodge Katie, as we all arrived at my father's suite just as she was disappearing through the door that led to the back stairway.

"Come in," Hugh said heartily. "Ah, Ticer—Jerry—glad to see you again! Just put those clothes on the chairs over there. There's no use putting them into the closets. We'll have to work fast."

From the doorway, I made a discreet withdrawal.

"I'll just go downstairs and wait for Charlie Kent,' I said. "He'll be here at two-thirty, or perhaps a few minutes before. When shall I bring him up?"

Hugh made another mental calculation.

"In ten minutes, if he's here by that time," he said. "After that, any minute he arrives. We'll be all ready for him."

To Nursery

"And I'll be here," I said, closing the door behind me, and going down to the nursery.

I did not knock, but noiselessly opened the door. As she saw me, Mother Graham in the sitting room put her finger on her lips and shook her head, while from the bedroom came the sound of Faith's voice crooning lullabies to the dolls she had taken to bed with her.

I closed the door with infinite care, resting securely upon the knowledge that my mother-in-law would prevent my small daughter from going into the hall before the departure of Charlie Kent and the Ticer men. Then I went upstairs again and into the library, where I slumped into the easiest arm chair I could find and tried to relax for the few minutes before Charlie Kent should drive his taxicab into the driveway.

But I found it impossible to sit still, so tense were my nerves, and when Charlie Kent finally knocked at the door, three minutes after the ten Hugh Grantland had named, I was racing up and down the library as if I were being chased by someone with a knout.

I flew to the door before Katie could get there, and threw it open wide.

"Come in, Charlie!" I said. I don't think Charlie Kent would answer to his name if he were called anything but Charlie. "You're here ahead of time, which is very good. We want to make out a plan."

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Mothers To Be

"THE EXPECTANT mother must eat enough for two," was about all the wisdom our mothers and grandmothers had on the subject. And it was pretty bad. It emphasized quantity and the modern attitude is that the quality—the ingredients, such as calcium, iron and vitamins—of the mother's diet are the important thing for the health of both child and mother. Even the idea of quantity was wrong. Too many mothers took it literally and considered that they must eat enough for two people of the same weight as the mother herself with the result that they would emerge from pregnancy well started on the road to middle aged obesity.

Let us examine, however, first the scientific evidence of the extra amount the mother should eat. The baby at birth weighs about seven pounds; there is an increase of two pounds in the weight of the womb; and the after-birth, membranes and fluid weigh about three and a half pounds—a total weight gain of twelve and a half pounds. And this is distributed over nine months. So eating for two isn't exactly accurate. If the mother is of normal weight at the beginning she needs a definite increase in calorie intake at the beginning of the fifth month. If she is underweight at the beginning she should try to gain up to normal weight.

Of the various food elements, the old idea that the protein should be restricted because it predisposed to some of the toxic conditions associated with pregnancy has been given up. The expectant mother should eat a good amount, probably a little extra amount over what she usually chooses of protein, picking out particularly the protein foods of the highest biologic quality, such as those of the flesh of fish and poultry, milk and milk products, eggs and a liberal serving of meat. Glandular tissues, such as liver, sweetbreads and kidney, are highly nutritious as regards the character of their protein, minerals and vitamin content.

Three minerals—calcium, phosphorus and iron—need special emphasis. Both for the sake of the mother's teeth and the baby's teeth calcium intake should be high. Another old adage—"for every child a tooth"—is quite false. Pregnancy does make a demand on the mother's teeth, but only if not enough calcium is supplied in her diet. The baby's teeth as well as the bones need plenty of calcium for normal development.

There is additional need of calcium for the baby beginning at the third month and the heaviest demand is during the last two months before delivery. Development of rickets in the baby is prevented by extra supply of calcium to the mother. And the improvement in the quality of the baby's teeth is marked when the mother deliberately increases her calcium intake. A high calcium diet is not injurious to the prospective mother. Calcium can be obtained in good amounts from a quart of milk a day and two or more servings of fruit and vegetables.

Iron is essential for blood building of the developing child. It is also necessary for the baby to develop a store of iron to provide for the lack experienced in the first few months of life, when milk is the only food. Iron is obtained from eggs, spinach, cereals and meat.

The Stars Say—

For Thursday, March 23

ACCORDING to the lunar and mutual aspects of important planets, this may prove to be a day of postponements, delays, frustration and defeat, at least temporarily. While the situation seems grave, with obstacles tenacious and circumstances tricky, yet a serious, studious and determined state of mind might be able to rationalize or visualize a safe and sound way out. Perhaps merely taking the initiative in postponing decisions or actions, and keeping alert to duplicity, fraud and intrigue may be the way. Refrain from emotional or impulsive moves, and maintain firm and logical conclusions. Avert reactions on health and all explosive behavior.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year in which there may be tenacious obstacles, delays and defeats to confront with patience, fortitude and determination to overcome all manner of difficulties and trials with logic, reason and good sense. The mentality will be found pitched to much shrewd, sagacious and deep-seated insight into the thwarting obstructions. It might be policy to "agree with thine adversary quickly," to postpone major moves with grace, but keep vigilant as to all snares, delusions and suspicious involvements. Act with mind, not emotions or impetuous outbursts, lest here be unhappy and futile reactions upon physical or professional wellbeing.

A child born on this day will be gifted with a sound and studious intellect, with versatility and insight; traits and skills needed to contend with treacherous circumstances or not too strong physical health.
